

P2P Foundation

A group of ten people, including men and women of various ages, are posing for a photo in front of a large, conical structure made of thick, grey, thatched material, likely a traditional dwelling or storage structure. The structure is set in a rural landscape with green fields and a cloudy sky. The people are dressed in casual outdoor attire, including jackets, scarves, and hats. One man on the right is holding a bundle of green plants. The overall scene suggests a community or cultural visit.

We help people, organizations and governments transition towards open knowledge, commons-based approaches to society

What is the P2P Foundation?

The P2P Foundation is a not-for-profit organization dedicated to advocacy and research of peer to peer dynamics in society.

P2P dynamics are most visible today in the many communities and movements self-organising around the co-creation of culture and knowledge. Some of the most well known examples are: Creative Commons, Free Software and Open Source, Open Access in education and science, Wikipedia, Open Data, Open Government and Free Culture.

These communities, values and practices are now also increasingly present in the world of physical production through Open Design, the Sharing Economy and Co-Working in Hacker/ Maker spaces and Fab Labs.

These movements represent a cultural shift towards new kinds of democratic and economic participation that we believe are sowing the seeds for a more sustainable and democratic future.

P2P can be characterized by the presence of open, participatory processes of production and governance for the creation of common goods, whose universal access is guaranteed by licenses such as Creative Commons or the GPL (GNU General Public License). The P2P Foundation monitors the emergence of P2P dynamics in every field of human activity. We document these projects on our open access wiki and report and critique current events on our blog.

Our network consists of independent researchers and academics active in grassroots social movements and in public and private sector institutions working for the transition to a P2P future.

P2P Foundation members are active all over the world, with representatives in Europe, Asia, South America, North America. We are always looking to expand our coverage and welcome new members to our community.

Objectives

Our present society is based on the absurd idea that material resources are abundant and immaterial ideas should be kept artificially scarce. The dominant paradigm behaves as if the planet contains infinite resources and it exploits the earth in a way that endangers survival of both animal species and humanity while building artificial walls around human knowledge to prevent and impede sharing as much as possible.

Our aims can be summarized under the following maxims:

1. Ending biosphere destruction by exposing dangerous and exploitative conceptions of pseudo-abundance in the natural world (based on the assumption that natural resources are infinite).
2. Promoting the free exchange of knowledge both scientific and cultural by abandoning innovation inhibiting conceptions of pseudo-scarcity (based on the assumption that the flow of knowledge must be restricted, made scarce, through excessive copyrights)

3. Studying and creating a comprehensive knowledge commons about P2P developments that can be used by the general public, researchers and business
4. Curating the best content on P2P and the Commons from around the globe
5. Offering a pluralistic understanding of this emerging field by representing diverse critical discourse
6. Connecting advocates, innovators, entrepreneurs and policy makers, as well as artists and cultural producers
7. Scaling projects through publication and promotion with our active network of experts

Our work

The P2P Foundation has a broad network.

P2P Foundation blog {ENG} - <http://blog.p2pfoundation.net> publishes 2-5 posts daily on current events and trends.

We regularly feature original writing by well known authors and activists including David Bollier, Kevin Carson, Charles Eisenstein, David de Ugarte, Nathan Schneider and founder Michel Bauwens.

We have Greek and Dutch language blogs, maintained by Vasilis Kostakis and Jean Lievens respectively and a partnership with Guerrilla Translation who regularly translate articles into Spanish helping us reach wider audiences.

P2P Foundation wiki - <http://p2pfoundation.net> features over 20,000 entries documenting this rapidly evolving field of research. It has been consulted over 27 million times since its launch in 2006.

In 2010, the total interconnected reach of the P2P Foundation has been calculated by Topsy at 2,000,000 in terms of secondary audience, and we have seen a consistent growth of our audience by at least 30% every year since 2006.

Partnerships

1. We have entered into a strategic alliance with the Catalan Integral Cooperative, seen as a first instance of an open cooperative to help develop the Faircoop alliance of global cooperative organisations based on open principles.

<http://blog.p2pfoundation.net/towardsafirststatelesscommons-transitionplanapartnershipofp2pwiththecatalanintegral-cooperative/2014/08/06>

2. We are also constructing an alliance for the Copyfair license work with the Reseau Francophone des Communs and savoirs.com.

3. Regarding transition work, we have set up an open platform for commons-based policy making, focused on Europe. We're seeking to extend the possibility of local workshops and have engaged in structured dialogues with a first political player, i.e. 10 days of workshops with elected officials of Syriza; we're also seeking connections with Podemos in Spain as they are similarly poised to take on a huge political role.

4. We work with the Commons Strategies Group at the global level.

COMMONS TRANSITION PLANS

These policy documents are designed to enable real world practices towards a society based on shared material and knowledge commons. We share them to give an overview of the many precedents and possibilities pointing to a fairer societal order, and inspire civil society collectives at the local, regional, national and global levels to adapt them to their particular contexts.

A COMMONS TRANSITION PLAN
The Commons Transition Plan is based on the analysis and observation of existing commons-based processes and economies and describes how a generative, commons-producing civil society can lead to a new market and state.

PUBLIC POLICY FOR A SOCIAL KNOWLEDGE ECONOMY
A report on the radical democratization of the state and the mobilization and expansion of the social/solidarity economy through the creation of public-commons partnerships.

OPEN DESIGN COMMONS AND DISTRIBUTED MANUFACTURING
A report on the application of social knowledge economy principles to the secondary economic sector, with an emphasis on manufacturing.

5. Sustainable manufacturing: We have an agreement and plans with Oikos, a Belgian, green think-tank with European reach. Our first joint production will be an edited volume on the convergence between open/free production and green concerns.

We also have active working relationships with Post Growth Institute(Global), Shareable, Ouishare, Goteo, Cultivate, WeCreate, Guerrilla Translation, Las Indias, Share the Words Resources and the Sustainable Economies Law Center.

Over the past 10 years the Foundation has collaborated with many others including Appropedia; Espians; Global Village Network; Vinay Gupta and Global Swadeshi; Institute for Distributed Creativity; openp2pdesign.org; Platoniq , United Diversity; Entrepreneur Commons; Ethical Markets TV; the Transitioner

Awards

The P2P Foundation has won research-oriented awards, such as the 2011 Next Idea award of Ars Electronica for the ChokePoint Project. The Chokepoint project collects, analyzes and reports on data relating to network neutrality and civil rights in the digital domain. <http://www.chokepointproject.net/>

Conferences, Seminars, Documentaries

The P2P Foundation also co-organizes academic conferences with leading members active in the global lecture circuit. Director and founder of the P2P Foundation, Michel Bauwens, visits over 15 countries per year for lectures, workshops and keynotes at conferences reaching new audiences and connecting with local activists and grassroots movements.

Bauwens is also a member of the Commons Strategies Group with David Bollier and Silke Helfrich who with the support of the Heinrich Böll Foundation organised The Commons and Economics Conference in 2013 <http://commonsandecomonomics.org>

Public speaking

Michel Bauwens has spoken at:

* Academic institutions such as Yale, Harvard, Cambridge, and the Sorbonne, including the Pontifical Academy of Social Sciences in Vatican City

* Keynote in conferences and festivals such as the OuishareFest (Paris), Elevate (Graz), Roumics (Lille), Re-Publica (Berlin), Degrowth (Leipzig)

* Cultural and policy foundations such as Giacomo Feltrinelli (Milan), Heinrich Boll (Berlin), Charles Léopold Mayer (Paris / Lausanne), Rosa Luxemburg (Quito), Bureau de Helling (Amsterdam), Oikos (Ghent), Etopia (Namur) and the Nikos Poulantzas Institute (Athens)

* Cultural institutions such as the Beursschouwburg (Brussels), Stedelijk Museum Amsterdam, Centre Pompidou, Bellas Artes (Madrid), CCCI (Barcelona), Parque Explora (Medellin)

* At pioneering coworking, hackerspaces and makerspaces such as La Paillasse and La Mutinerie (Paris), Coroutine - Mutualab (Lille), Limerick and Galway Fablabs, Timelab (Ghent), Cloughjordan Eco-village and Fablab

* In cities the world over: Rio de Janeiro, Medellin and Bogota (Colombia), Quito (Ecuador), Addis Abeba, Beijing and Shengdu, Istanbul

Research

Active Research Projects

Commons Transition (2014 / 2015)

From 2013 to 2014 the founder of the P2P Foundation, Michel Bauwens, was acting research director with the FLOK (Free Libre Open Knowledge) Society project in Ecuador.

With the support of the Ecuadorian government and working with civil society and grassroots organisations the FLOK society conducted research and developed a set of policy proposals to support the transition of Ecuador to a 'Social Knowledge Economy'.

A Social Knowledge Economy can be defined as an economy where the free and open sharing of knowledge is integrated into all aspects of the productive matrix of the economy. The policy proposals placed a strong emphasis on enabling and empowering citizens and social innovation through the creation of free and open access knowledge commons, focusing on areas such as agriculture, manufacturing, cooperative economy, higher education, scientific research and open government.

The research aspects of the FLOK project were completed in June 2014. The FLOK project management team continue to work with the Ecuadorian government on the legal implementation of the project proposals.

The P2P Foundation continues to build on the research under the name of Commons Transition and are launching a new platform in 2015 at www.commonstransition.org

P2P Value (2013 - 2016)

P2P Value is a 3 year multi-stakeholder EU FP7 research project. The project researches the creation of common value in P2P and collaborative communities. Ethnographic and statistical analysis of communities engaged in peer production of commons resources provide the basis for the development of legal frameworks and design principles which will be used for the development of free software tools catered to supporting the needs of P2P communities.

To the right of the logo is the tagline: 'Techno-social platform for sustainable models and value generation in commons-based peer production in the Future Internet'. Below the logo and tagline is a navigation menu with the following items: HOME, BLOG, PROJECT, CONSORTIUM, PEOPLE, PUBLICATIONS, CONTACT, ENGAGE, EVENTS, and a search bar. The main content area features a heading 'What is P2Pvalue?' followed by a group photograph of approximately 15 people standing in a courtyard. To the right of the photograph is a Twitter feed with three tweets. The first tweet is from Emile HOOGHE (@ehoooge) posted 4 hours ago, mentioning a map of Berlin's sharing economy and retweeted by P2Pvalue. ## Synthetic Overview of the Collaborative Economy (2012)

The Synthetic Overview of the Collaborative Economy was prepared for Orange Labs, a division of the French telecom company, as a comprehensive survey and analysis of new forms of collaborative production on the Internet.

In the last decade or so, many new collaborative practices emerged in the business world, ranging from open innovation, co-design and co-creation, but also crowdsourcing, collaborative consumption. These practices can be interpreted as ‘emergent’ as they are still mostly marginal in their economic weight relative to the mainstream market economy. There are however some exceptions. For example, the open content and open source economy has already been estimated to be one sixth of U.S. GDP. In parallel with these collaborative practices, there is also a very visible growth in distributed infrastructures for material production, such as the rapid evolution of micromanufacturing through 3D printing, the rapid growth of collaborative workplaces such as in coworking, and new modalities of distributed financing, such as crowdfunding and social lending. There is no question that mainstream business practices will be impacted even more by this horizontalization in the future, and that a diagonal adaptation to these challenges will be on the order of the day. What follows is a synthetic mapping and overview of the different manifestations of the emerging collaborative economy.

Publishing

Network Society and Future Scenarios for a Collaborative Economy by Vasilis Kostakis, Michel Bauwens

Published by Palgrave Pivot in August, 2014. ISBN 9781137415066

The aim of this book is not to provide yet another critique of capitalism but rather to contribute to the ongoing dialogue for post-capitalist construction, and to discuss how another world could be possible. It builds on the idea that peertopeer infrastructures are gradually becoming the general conditions of work, economy, and society, considering peer production as a social advancement within capitalism but with various postcapitalistic aspects in need of protection, enforcement, stimulation and connection with progressive social movements. Using a fourscenario approach, the authors seek to simplify possible outcomes and to explore relevant trajectories of the current technoeconomic paradigm within and beyond capitalism. They postulate that the mature peer production communities pose a sustainable alternative to capital accumulation, that of the circulation of the Commons. They make some tentative transition proposals towards a Commonsbased economy and society for the state, the market and the civic domain.

With P2P - Towards a Post-Capitalist Society by Jean Lievens,
Michel Bauwens

Published by Houtekiet in 2013. ISBN 978 90 8924 254 9

Based on a 12 hour interview by former journalist Jean Lievens with Michel Bauwens. The original Flemish title for the book is “De Wereld Redden”. The book achieved its third printing in a very short time in the Flanders (Flemish) region. French translation is underway and we are seeking publishing partners for an English language edition.

“Our present day society is based upon the absurd notion that material resources are abundant and immaterial ideas scarce. We behave as if the planet were infinite, and exploit the earth in ways that endanger the survival of the human species. On the other hand, we build artificial walls around human knowledge to impede and prevent and sharing as much as possible.

Just as feudalism developed within the womb of the Roman slave society and capitalism then developed within feudalism, we are now witnessing the embryo of a new form of society gestating within capitalism. In order to save the world, we need a relocalisation of production and an extension of global cooperation in the fields of knowledge, code and design.”

Support our work

We hope this document has given you a good sense of who we are, what we do and where we want to go. Your support enhances our capacity for advocacy, enabling us to reach new audiences, pursue ambitious projects and develop world class research for the common good, that we believe is critical if humanity is to not only survive the great challenges of the 21st century, but thrive in a truly sustainable and democratic future.

Get Involved

To date many of the structural operations of the Foundation have been organised and managed by a committed group of volunteers. The free collaboration of contributors is what has made the Foundation what it is today. This spirit of voluntarism for the promotion of the common good is central to P2P Foundation and reflects values of peer production communities more generally. We are always working hard to make our work open and accessible to as broad a spectrum of people as possible.

There are many ways to contribute so if you are passionate about the commons and peer production and have some time on your hands you can contact us at contact@p2pfoundation.net or to apply for membership see http://p2pfoundation.net/New\_Member\_Questionnaire

Financial Support

We are keen to develop partnerships with others that share our commitment to social change and are actively seeking financial support to progress our Strategic Priorities for 2015-2016 as referred to earlier in the document. We are also looking to expand structural and operational support for the ongoing development of our web presence, community and advocacy.

If you are interested in supporting our work financially on an ongoing basis or through the development of a working partnership please contact us directly at contact@p2pfoundation.net

Special thanks to our supporters and funders

We would like to offer a special thanks to our active community of contributors and volunteers without whom the work we do would not be possible.

In addition we thank the Charles Léopold Mayer Foundation for their generous support which enabled us among other things to develop CommonsTransition.org.

<http://www.fph.ch>

We also thank The Heinrich Boell Foundation for their support to the commons and having made it possible on a number of occasions to bring activists and researchers together to share experiences, deepen our understandings of the challenges, build solidarity and ultimately enhance the discourse that informs our work.
